To the SHORTHORN COW Is This Book Dedicated

What the Shorthorn Cow has done for me she can do for you

THE destinies of men are shaped through various agencies. Some acknowledge their allegiance to lofty ideals, others worship the lives of characters in history. Emerson said, "Hitch your Wagon to a Star," but it was the Shorthorn Cow that shaped my destiny. It was through her that losses in farm operation were turned into profits. She chose my associates from among the stalwart men who are engaged in her propagation. She elevated my vision from the level of the horizon to a conception of greater purposes in life. The sentiments and emotions which have been created within me as a result of these associations and this newer vision have become the bread of my very existence. Obligations I acknowledge, and as an individual I would feel lacking in the qualities of a true citizen were I not to impart to others some of the lessons I have learned through my experiences, associations and observations. Construction and not destruction, to help and not hinder are the underlying motives.

Why I Am Breeding Shorthorns

A narration which will interest most that man who has never bred a Shorthorn

"Man is never all that he can be. At any point in his career he has a growing future. His purposes are not ended with this life, neither does he live in a spent world."

THESE sayings appeal to me and cause me to stop and think of an event several years ago, when I was riding on a train with a friend, coming from St. Joseph, Mo., where I had been showing cattle. My friend asked me the question:

"Lookabaugh, why are you showing cattle 'way up here at St. Joe? Don't you think the demand for your cattle will come from farther south and west?"

"Yes," I answered, "but in order to answer your question properly it would take a long story."

"We have nothing else to do," he remarked. "Let's have the story."

I began by telling him of how I had started up as a poor boy in 1900, with a lease on a quarter section of school land down near Watonga, Blaine County, Oklahoma,—with no improvements, no fences, no trees, not even ten acres of "broke" land—just a log house, that's all. How I had a few head of heifers, some hogs, and seven head of horses with which to do my farming. I explained to him how the first year I worked very hard to make some money out of farming, and on the first day of January, when I figured up the farming account, the cattle account and the hog account, I discovered that the farm had lost money. The cattle and hogs each had made a profit.

I set out the next year to make the farm pay. At that time I thought there was where I would have to make my stake, if I made any. On the first day of January, 1902, when I figured up these same accounts, at the time of the second invoice, I began to realize the farm had just held its own, and although I had been getting up earlier, working later, and possibly neglecting the livestock more than the first year, yet both the cattle and hog accounts showed a handsome profit.

This caused me to stop and think, and reason out that a farm is not a complete farm without the different kinds of livestock to furnish a market for the farm products. I clearly saw that the livestock, up to that time, eating only the by-products of the farm, were making more money than the grain crops which I was raising and selling, and I decided that by feeding to the livestock not only the by-products, but also the grain products of the farm I might make still larger profits.

From this thought I proceeded to buy a number of heifer calves for the purpose of feeding through the coming winter, together with some of my own raising. Soon after I had the project well in hand and the calves nicely started I had several opportunities to dispose of them at more than I had paid, but I refused. I wanted to feed them the corn and alfalfa raised on the farm and in the spring take them to the Kansas City market and see if there wasn't something I could learn.

In April, when the corn and alfalfa was getting low, I made arrangements to ship the calves. Silvers & Scott, then the stock shippers of our town, tried hard to buy the calves, but I refused, and persuaded them to buy a load of cattle that belonged to my neighbor and go with me to Kansas City. I told them I was expecting a nickel a pound for these heifer calves. They thought I was entirely too high, since I had paid only two and a half cents for them the fall before.

But we loaded the calves. J. D. Scott bought a load from Sam Sutherland, then our county sheriff, and went along with me to Kansas City. We arrived at the market late at night, went to bed and the next morning went down to the yards to find Caley Adams, of the National Commission Company, who had been waiting for us. After getting acquainted Adams made the remark:

"Lookabaugh, I have been offered a nickel for the best of the calves."

"Have you? Then sell them!"

"Think so?" he interjected.

I told him that he was doing the selling, that I would be satisfied, as that was the price I had fed for. He seemed pleased from the fact that I had an object in view and said that he would sell them if he could not get any more money.

About thirty minutes later he returned and said he had sold the calves. He asked if Scott and myself did not want to go along to see them weighed up, and pointed to the elevated runway where I could find them.

"They are going over the highline to Armour," said Adams.

I remember how this remark thrilled me. Just a boy, I felt very proud to be able to feed calves good enough to go to a man like Armour. When we weighed the calves they weighed heavier than I expected. This was pleasing of course and caused my friend Scott to concede that he ought to have bought them and shipped on his own account. But, he seemed pleased over the proposition, about as much as I did.

We went to dinner. I remember, I paid for the dinner, and about one o'clock went back to the yards. We were looking around to see what we could learn. I came across a man sitting on a fence, with his hands on his knees, looking down into a pen of red, long haired, wooly heifer calves. The look on his face was not pleasant. I felt a little sorry for him and asked him what he got for his calves.

"Five and a half and six cents."

I looked very much bewildered and asked how long he had fed them, for at that time corn fed calves were selling much higher than those that were not corn fed. He looked at me as much as to ask:

"Can't you see anything?" and followed with the remark: "I haven't fed them at all. Just brought them in off the wheat."

I turned to my friend Scott, who was bursting his sides laughing at me, and remarked:

"Wait, Jim. Don't laugh. There is something here for us to learn." I asked him if he could tell me why those calves brought more money than mine, when they hadn't been grain fed at all, and mine had been fed corn and alfalfa all winter. He pointed across the pens where Adams was on his horse, and said:

"Get him to tell you."

I called Adams over, explained that I was not dissatisfied with the sale he had made for me during the forenoon, but inquired why those other calves brought more money than mine. He looked at me rather funny and said:

"Lookabaugh, they have got more quality, haven't they?"

"Yes," says I, "I guess they have, but just what do you mean?" He saw I was ignorant but frank, and took particular pains to show me that those long-haired, wooly, red calves had broader backs, better hams, thicker flesh, and ended by saying:

"And they will dress out a larger percentage of high priced meat according to their live weight. That is what the packers buy them for, isn't it?"

I blushed, Jim laughed, and Adams wheeled his horse and was gone. This put me to thinking.

I came home and told my banker what the calves had done. He was very pleased, slapped me on the shoulder and said:

"Clive, at the time I loaned you the money to buy them, you said that was what you were going to get."

I explained to him what I had learned and that I wanted to buy some of the best quality steers I could find to feed the next winter. He said to me:

"Go ahead! Buy anything you want! You are some financier!" and handed me a check book.

I went out the next fall, and bought the best steers that I could find, twice the number I had expected to feed. After I had them on feed thirty days I met a shipper in Watonga who inquired if I didn't have a load of steers to sell. I told him that I did. He came down to my place, looked over the steers and said:

"Yes, this best load of cattle is in good enough shape to go.

I told him these were not the ones I wanted to sell. It was the poorer ones that I wanted to get rid of. He laughed and said:

"That's funny. I thought it was the best ones you would want to sell now and keep the others until they get better."

"No," says I, "it's the ones doing the best that I want to keep," and these were the ones that I did keep. I fed them until the next spring, took them to Kansas City to the same firm, and asked Mr. Adams to go and look at them. After looking them over, he said:

"Lookabaugh, these steers are of better quality than the heifers you had here last year, but you need a registered Scotch bull on the backs of those Oklahoma cows to raise you better feeding steers."

I thanked him and left. I went home with the thought of buying a registered bull, and here is where the fight began as to what kind of a bull I would buy.

My first thought was to buy a Red Polled bull, for I wanted them red and without horns. Upon investigation I found that these cattle did not meet with much favor in the beef classes and consequently would not suit my project.

I then took up the Polled Durham, with the idea that they would be nearer the shape of the animal I wanted, and yet be red and without horns. I made an investigation of this breed and went so far as to visit a man who owned a nice herd. After looking through his cattle I made the remark:

"You have a nice herd, but are they not lacking a little in quality?"

The man said—"Yes, but come around here and I'll show you how I am getting the quality." He took me out to a box stall around the corner of the barn and showed me a big, white Shorthorn bull. I asked him what he had him for and he explained:

"To use on those cows to give their calves more quality."

Not understanding at that time that this was perfectly legitimate and did produce a good class of cattle, I immediately decided that I did not want a cross-bred, as I thought they were, though have since found out that they were not.

I drifted from Polled Durhams to the Aberdeen Angus, knowing that they were of uniform color and were hornless. After a thorough investigation I found that they had plenty of quality, but that they were a little smaller, were not noted for having the best disposition, and that the females as a rule did not give a large flow of milk. I reasoned that they would not exactly suit the Oklahoma farm, that they belonged in the northern feed lot where fancy baby-beef was produced. I hesitated to give them up, however, since they were the last breed of beef cattle I knew anything about that was hornless, and it was with considerable reluctance that I turned to the "Whiteface" for I knew they had horns, were inclined to be a trifle wild, yet I thought that by taking good care of them I could gradually develop some good milkers among them, and began a correspondence with Overton Harris & Sons, Harris, Mo., contemplating on buying a bull and three heifers. We exchanged several letters. In my last letter to Mr. Harris I asked him a frank question, if he could recommend this breed of cattle for the Oklahoma farms, but in a very diplomatic way he said that he could more highly recommend them for the western range and told me why.

Then I was up in the air. I did not know what to do. It was while riding on a train between Edmond and Oklahoma City one day that I met an old acquaintance I had formed at school, a man in whose judgment I had considerable confidence, and asked him this question:

"Mr. Brown, do you know where I can find the kind of cattle I am looking for?"

He asked me what kind of a cow I was wanting. I described the big, flat-backed, red cow that gave lots of milk and had a good disposition. He smiled and advised that in his opinion it was the Shorthorn I was looking for. I replied:

"No, I do not like them, because they are of different colors and have horns," to which he said:

"Well, if you are color blind and eat horns you will not get very far in the cattle business." He inferred that I should know enough to take the breed that was best adapted to my country rather than take the breed that I liked.

"But," says I, "I do not understand, Mr. Brown, what you mean about being color blind."

"Well," says he, "you shouldn't sacrifice quality for color. Take a good one no matter what color he is. Generally speaking there are more good ones among the three colors than there ever is in any one color, and, about the horns, you can't eat them, can you?"

"No," I said, "and that's the reason why I can't see any use in them."

"Well," he said, a little impatiently, "if you can get the same sized steer at the same age under the same care from among any of the breeds that are hornless I would advise you to get them, but you can't. If you ever feed steers and keep books on your feed lot you will discover when they have been sold that had they weighed 150 pounds more and brought a little higher price per pound they would have made considerably more money." I said to him:

"Mr. Brown, that is exactly my experience."

"Well," he said, "if you want cattle with their horns off you had better take a little caustic and dehorn the calves. With ten cents worth of caustic and ten minutes time you can dehorn the calf that when matured into a steer will give you that extra 150 pounds in weight. That means more profit than you will ever make again in the life of any one steer." I said:

"Mr. Brown, I am glad to hear this. I did not know it."

"Everybody knows it," he remarked.

I inquired where I could buy a Shorthorn bull, that I had a bunch of grade cows at home that I wanted to use him on to raise some feeding steers. He told me of a certain sale that was going to be held in Oklahoma City. I attended the sale. It was there that I met Col. Bob Harriman of Bunceton, Mo., and told him that I wanted him to help me select a bull. He immediately asked me what I had at home. I told him of the bunch of grade cows from which I wanted to raise some feeding steers—that I had been told that if I would buy a registered Scotch bull to cross on these cows their calves would have better quality. I had made a pretty smart remark, but I didn't know it.

He looked at me and said: "Young man, you are starting right. What town are you from?"

"Watonga," I answered.

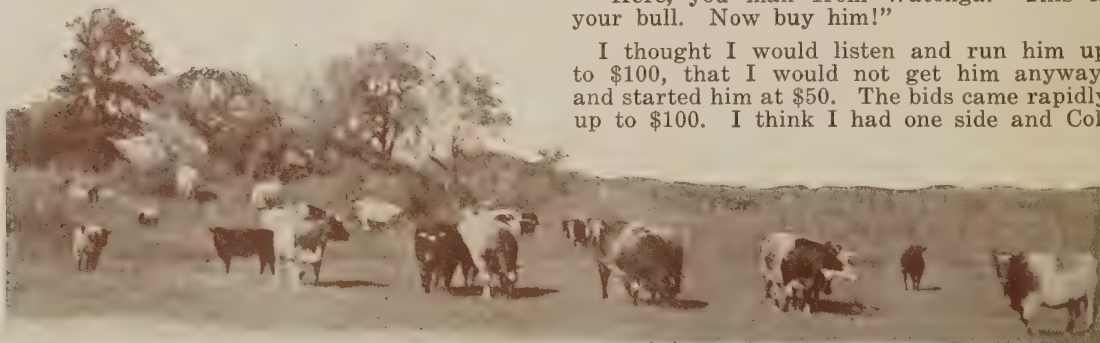

"All right," he said, "I will help you," and went on.

The next day during the sale I bid on every good, heavy set, thick fleshed bull that came into the ring. I would run them up to $100 and quit. They would go on and sell as high as $200, $300 and even $400. It got to be quite a joke with the auctioneer and the crowd, and, finally, as the sale was nearing the close and I had about decided I was not going to get a bull, in came a thick, heavy-set, wide-out, red bull that was just what I wanted, only he had horns that stuck up like those of a buffalo.

I thought to myself—"Gee, I wouldn't want you," when at that instant Col. Bob called out:

"Here, you man from Watonga. This is your bull. Now buy him!"

I thought I would listen and run him up to $100, that I would not get him anyway, and started him at $50. The bids came rapidly up to $100. I think I had one side and Col.

Bob the other, and when the bid reached $100 he said:

"Sold to that young man from Watonga!"

The crowd laughed and I thought here is where I had played the deuce.

After the sale I was down at the stall looking at the bull, trying to make myself believe those horns didn't look quite so bad, when the auctioneer came along with a couple of his friends. He saw me before I saw him, else I would not have been there. He asked me how I liked my bull. I told him:

"All right, only those horns."

"Well, my boy, you can't eat the horns anyway can you?"

"No," I says, "I have heard that remark before."

"Well," said he, "you told me you have a bunch of grade cows at home from which you want to raise steers, and you will dehorn the calves, won't you?"

I granted that I would, when he said:

"What difference will the horns make on those steers? Lookabaugh, you bought the same blood in this bull that Rockwood bought in that $400 bull. It is the blood you are after, isn't it?"

I thanked him very much and told him I was learning, but very slow. He made the remark:

"I think you are learning pretty fast."

I took the bull home and when I got him away from the rest he looked still better. My friends at Watonga complimented me very highly on the purchase of such an animal, and to my delight never criticised his horns once. That spring I turned him in the pasture with the cows, feeding him some grain twice a day. It was along in June. The days began to get hot. The wind blew from the south. Flies came; grass began to shrink; the price of cattle dropped. I went out to the pasture and this bull was not looking nearly as good as he had been. For the first time I had about half way come to the same conclusion as some of my neighbors had formed, that I was a darned fool for paying $100 for a bull when I could have bought ten heifer calves for that money. But on the second thought I remembered that it was in that year's outline to buy a registered bull, and I dismissed it from my mind and went home.

The next spring when his calves began to arrive I felt very proud of him. They were great big, flat backed, red colored, with more bone and size than I had ever seen before. By July of that year my neighbors were coming in to see the calves. In October one of them picked out a calf that he wanted for a bull. I told him that I didn't want to sell him—that I wanted them all for feeding steers. He simply made the remark:

"Well, I want that one and I will give you more for him as a bull than he will be worth fat as a steer. I'll give you $50.00 for him."

I was very much pleased and told him I guessed he could have him, as that was as much as two-year-old steers were bringing in those days.

A little later we weaned all the calves and weighed them. To my surprise, even with all the late summer calves in the bunch, they averaged 450 pounds, a remarkable weight I thought. I picked out seventeen of the best ones and they averaged 550 pounds. I would not believe the scales and weighed them over, and when I found the weights were correct, I said:

"Well, that's because they are so big and fat. If they are that good maybe I had better sell the rest of those bulls to my neighbors and improve the cattle of the community. I could then buy their calves back to feed later."

My mind didn't travel out any farther than the horizon at that time. I put them in a lot, fed them a half gallon of grain twice a day with alfalfa hay. By the next spring I had sold all but seven, ranging in price from $42 to $50 per head. A man from over near Stillwater came over to my place to buy the balance of the bulls. I sold him the seven head at $42.50 per head in less than five minutes, and remarked that I would like to weigh some of them as they went out.

"All right," he said. "Let's weigh the largest one, the smallest one and the middle-sized one."

We put the three on the scales, weighed them and then weighed off the largest one. The scales showed he weighed 900 pounds. I would not believe them. The buyer laughed. We weighed him again and proved that he weighed the 900 pounds. We weighed off the next largest one and he weighed 850 pounds; and the smallest one 800 pounds. I made the remark:

"Is it possible that those bulls weighed that much?"

At that point my banker, who had brought the buyer out to my place, came up close to me and whispered:

"Why, Clive, did he beat you?"

The buyer seemed very much pleased and I looked him square in the face and said:

"You are entitled to every cent you make on this deal. If those bulls weigh what the scales say they do I have made a fortune." I told him about the yearlings I used to have, weighing only 550 pounds, and explained to him how I had bought this sire to raise feeding steers, that I had thought of keeping the steers until they were past two years old before putting them on feed. My estimation was that they ought to weigh 1,000 pounds by that time, and here these calves, just a year old, were weighing nearly that much.

"They are worth more on the market than you have paid for them. They have made me more per head than their mothers cost. That is the first proposition I have ever found in my life that will make 100 per cent profit in one year, since I quit buying the little $6.00 steer in the fall and and selling him at $12.00 in the spring."

I further told them that I was going to buy a ranch in Texas, stock it up with grade cows, put registered bulls on them, sell their calves on the market and get rich.

I went in the house and told my wife that a man would be selfish to make a discovery of this kind and not try to impart the information to others.

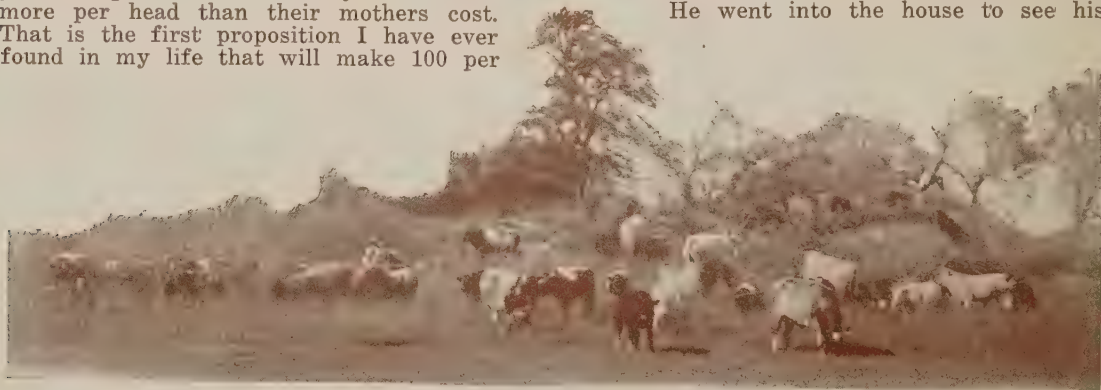

A few days later I was in Watonga. A man from Hydro met me and said he understood I had some good bulls to sell. I told him I had sold all my yearling bulls, but that I had a few calves left. He made the remark that he had been looking for a registered bull for some time. I explained that my bulls were not registered, that they were grades, but were very good. He told me that he was not interested in grades, that he had grades at home and walked off and left me.

This was the first bump I had received and I immediately decided that if I was going to raise some bulls to sell I had better buy a few registered cows and thereby have a few pure-bred bulls in the next crop of calves. I bought five cows at $100 each. Three of them brought bull calves. I put these calves in with the grades the next fall at weaning time. The first bull buyer that came along took a registered bull calf at $100. I thought the price was so high they would not buy them, when I was offering them grades, nearly as good, at $40 to $50.

The next buyer wanted a registered bull and I told him that I did not want to sell him a registered bull that I wanted these registered bulls to last me all winter. He went away without buying anything. This taught me a lesson, and that was to sell a man what he wants if you are getting your price for it.

The other two registered calves and the grades were all sold by the coming spring, and I started out for Texas to buy me a ranch. Was down there a week riding around with an old cowman by the name of Smith. I got up one morning a little nervous and said to Mr. Smith:

"Let's go over and buy a part of that Johnson ranch on Sweetwater Creek." He had his boy hitch the horse to the buckboard and we drove over. Mr. Johnson came out and I proceeded to try to buy the ranch. We were $200 apart on the share of some wheat. He went into the house to see his wife and decide what to do. While he was in there Mr. Smith asked me how many acres I was figuring it would take to pasture an animal. I told him six. He said I had better figure on ten. I said:

"My Goodness, Mr. Smith, the interest on the investment in ten acres out here would pasture five or six on the North Canadian in Oklahoma where I was located. But, I guess the more a fellow has the more it costs to keep them."

During the nights I had spent with Mr. Smith I had explained to him about my discovery, about the grass on the North Canadian only costing me 25 cents a year, about me not having enough land to keep all the cattle I wanted to buy with what money I had. I explained to him that I wanted to keep all my money in cattle until cattle got high and then I was going to sell out and quit. He looked at me and said:

"Lookabaugh, you seem to have things figured out to such a point. If you would invest your money in $100 cows couldn't you still keep them all there on the North Canadian?"

I told him "Yes, easy, but do you suppose I could sell their calves?"

He made the remark that he did not know how many $100 cows I could buy, but that there were men in Texas that were buying 100 bulls a year. It flashed through my mind how nice it would be to have all registered cattle, and that by putting $100 in each cow, instead of $40, I would have only two-fifths as many cows to feed and by so doing I could save over half my winter's feed bill, and still keep the cattle there on the North Canadian.

I explained to Mr. Johnson when he came out what I had decided to do, and offered to pay him for what trouble I had put him to. He refused to take anything, shook hands with me and said he wished me success.

I left for home on the next train. I told my wife that I had decided to buy all $100 cows. She raised no objections, though she questioned the advisability of it. I started out to buy. Neighbors began talking about me putting in all registered cattle. This made me feel pretty proud and after I had been out for several days I ran across a yearling heifer that was just as square as a box car and as pretty as a picture. The owner asked me $250 for her. I nearly fell dead. I told him he was crazy high, that I was buying registered cows for $100 each. He laughed and said:

"You are not buying them like this one at $100 apiece!"

I told him I thought they would be, but they were not as fat. I laughed at him and told him mine were as good as I could get, for they were registered. He told me I could go ahead and buy them, that he didn't want to sell this one anyway. I thought of how much the people were talking about my good cattle, and that if I only had this one to take home I could surely please the folks. I also thought of our county fair, and decided that I would just sink that much money and buy this one to look at. He insisted that this was a better investment than the $100 cow.

I turned around abruptly and said:

"Now don't you start any story like that on me—buying this kind of a cow for an investment." Up to that time the people had a fair opinion of my business judgment, and I further said: "I am just buying this cow to look at," to which he said:

"You'll see."

I took her home. She was the pride of the family. I took her to the county fair and she won first in class, junior and grand championship and was considered by my friends to be as good an animal as there was in the United States, which is really no more than a reasonable conclusion when you have a good one by itself.

The next spring this heifer brought a calf. My friends persuaded me to take her and her calf, along with three others, to the Enid Fair. I did so, and to my surprise they looked pretty good among the other cattle. I worked day and night with them to get them to suit me. The next two days of the show we had a jolly good time. The calf won first in the open class, and her mother won second in the Oklahoma class. The judge told me that if I had trimmed her feet I would have won first, too. The winning of the blue ribbon with this heifer calf, in competition with two northern herds showing there, created quite an excitement among my friends in Watonga.

It happened like this. When I led the calf out to show in her class, along with the other calves that were already out and waiting, Will Robbins, of Horace, Ind., one of the oldest breeders in the United States, doing the judging, asked me if this was all the calves that were to show in the junior heifer calf class. I told him I thought so. The men gathered around in a circle. It was sweltering hot. I wanted my calf to win very badly, but did not think it was possible. In a few minutes the judge placed me at the head of the class, the clerk handed me the blue ribbon and announced the award.

I started back to the barn leading my calf, the proudest boy in America, when, behold, who should I meet but Neal Nevius from Childs, Kans., leading a heifer calf, a nice roan, some larger than mine, and went to joshing me in a good natured way, accusing me of trying to steal the blue ribbon. I was too young in the show business to know that his calf belonged in that class, and I felt very much embarrassed over having told the judge that all the calves were out. Then I just knew in my mind that I had lost the blue ribbon.

I turned around, led the calf back to the ring and handed the blue ribbon to the judge. I told him I had lied, though it was not intentional. The boys all took it as a joke and made considerable fun out of it, but it was no joke to me. In a few minutes the crowd quieted down, the judge began to work the calves over again, when a friend stepped up and said:

"Clive, you may win it yet."

I thanked him. By that time I was sufficiently over my embarrassment to size up the other calf. In just a few minutes

Judge Robbins walked around behind the calves, foded his arms and began to laugh, and said to Mr. Nevius:

"Neal, I am going to hand it back to him. His is the best calf in the class."

My Watonga friends yelled and threw up their hats, and of course I felt better than ever.

During the few days at the show I heard considerable talk about Scotch and Scotch-Topped breeding, which of course I did not then understand. I began to wonder why this cow and calf had won so well and I learned it was on account of their thickness of flesh and good form. I asked Judge Robbins if he would go over the pedigrees I had in my herd and tell me something about them.

He said: "Yes, I will be glad to. I notice you have been working with your cattle day and night. You certainly are going to make a Shorthorn breeder, and I would be glad to help you in any way I can."

I took him to my cattle, offered him a seat on a bale of hay, and handed him the pedigrees one by one. He looked at the first and made this comment:

"This is a nicely bred animal."

I handed him another and he said it was very good too. When I handed him the third one he said:

"Woa, where did you get this one?"

I asked him: "Why, isn't she registered?"

He answered by saying: "I guess she is. She has five Scotch Tops."

"Well," says I, "does that hurt her?" He laughed and said:

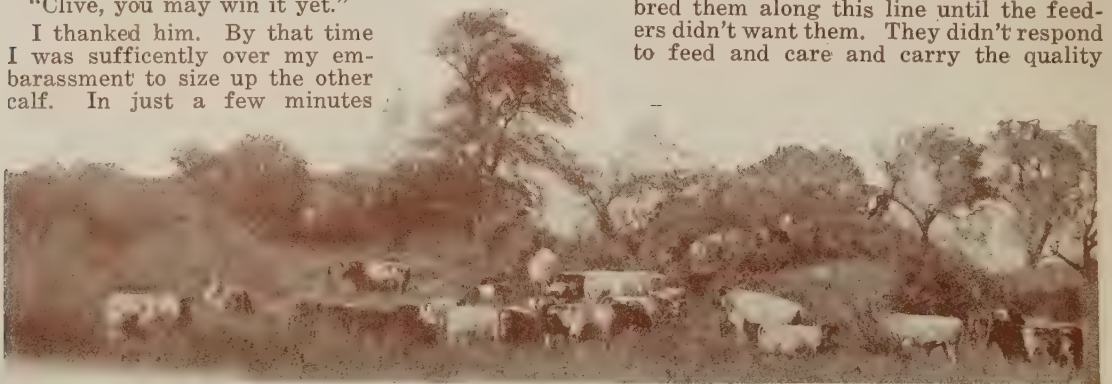

"No, that's a good thing. Look at the bulls on the top of her pedigree."

I asked him what about those bulls, if they meant any more than those that were at the top of the other pedigrees I had shown him. He said they did and proceeded to tell me what they had done.

I frankly said to him: "Judge I can't understand just what you mean by Scotch and Scotch-Topped."

He explained to me that a good many years ago the Shorthorn breeders of this country were breeding what might be termed a 17-hand animal, upstanding, rough, thin haired, narrow over the crops, with a fine cut head. He said they used to measure them in the show ring with a tape line, and followed with:

"Lookabaugh, the fact of the matter is they bred them along this line until the feeders didn't want them. They didn't respond to feed and care and carry the quality they should at the end of the feeding period. The ranchman didn't want them because they didn't stand the abuse, and the 'Whiteface' men came in with their little, low, heavy set cattle and pretty nearly put the Shorthorn men out of business. It was then the Shorthorn men conceived the idea that if they would go over to Scotland and buy one of those thick-fleshed, low-down, heavy-set, long-haired Scotch bulls with a good heart girth and cross on the up-standing American cow they would get a better type of feeding cattle. They did so and the change was remarkable. It shortened their legs, thickened their flesh, lengthened their hair and much improved their constitution. Now, this offspring from the American cow and Scotch bull had one Scotch Top. If the calf was a heifer and later mated with another Scotch bull, their offspring would carry two Scotch Tops, and so on. Why, this cow of yours has five Scotch Tops, virtually a pure Scotch cow."

Here I asked him if he could call her a pure Scotch cow. He said:

"Oh, no, but her breeding is mighty good."

I inquired if he considered the pure Scotch cow the best, to which he replied:

"Yes, because they transmit to their offspring their ability to respond to feed and care faster."

I then asked what it would cost me to buy a pure Scotch cow, and he answered:

"$200, $300, $400, $500 or $600, just whatever a man might wish to pay."

There I thought to myself: "Just whatever you can get a sucker to pay," and told him that question, because, being a young breeder 'way down in Oklahoma nobody will ever know anything about me.

"Nobody will ever know anything about you unless you do buy some of those good Scotch cows," was his rejoinder.

Then I said to him: "Judge, you wouldn't advise me to buy one of those high priced cows to use 'way down in Oklahoma, would you?"

"Why not. You have the home of the alfalfa, the greatest cow feed on earth, a higher altitude, which is better for the cow, long summers and short winters with wheat pasture during most of the winter, with a breeze in the summer, just what a cow likes."

I told him I agreed with him about our conditions, but if I would pay that much for a cow and take her down into Oklahoma my friends would think me crazy.

"That is just what you want them to say. The more they call you crazy to start with, the more they will brag on your cattle when they find out there is really something back of them."

I thanked him and told him I was sorry, but that it would be impossible for me to buy one of those cows now. His attitude was very polite, but he got up and left me. I expected him to come around a little later and sell me a high priced cow, but he didn't.

Soon after I noticed a bunch of men standing in conversation with the judge, and I couldn't resist the temptation to join them. At the close I said to him:

"Judge, if I were to go to your place in a month or two would you show me some of those high priced cows?"

"Yes," he said, "I will be glad to."

Am sure he did not think I would come, but in May of the same year I made the trip and on the way stopped over at Bunceton, Mo., to visit my friend, Col. Bob Harriman, who had helped me buy my first bull. I stayed all night and went over the proposition thoroughly with him. He gave me the same advice as did Mr. Robbins. I put to him this question:

"Colonel, if you had a few thousand to invest in Shorthorns what would you buy with it?" He replied:

"Lookabaugh, if I had $2,000 to invest I would buy just two cows." He pointed out two cows in his herd that had been part of his foundation, and told me about a high-priced sale that had been held a few weeks before, that every breeder there was seeking that stock because they considered it the best.

I began to realize that if I could even get a little of the best breeding on which to found my herd, in a very few years my herd would consist all of the best.

I left Bunceton and started for Horace, Indiana, where I spent a night and a day with Judge Robbins. He told me many interesting stories, among them how Ruberta had defeated the Queen's heifer Cicely, how he had sold Choice Goods and four other members of his show herd to Col. Casey for $25,000. He showed me the picture of Imp. Gay Monarch on the wall and the next morning we went out to his grave. Here is where the sentiment of the business seized me stronger than ever, for I had begun to realize that there was really something human about the work.

All the forenoon we looked at the cows in the pasture and finally, after he had gone over the proposition again with me, and answered my hundred and one questions, I said to him:

"Judge, I want you to show me a good cow or two that you will sell me worth the money." He turned and said:

"Lookabaugh, I haven't a thing to sell you."

I plainly showed my surprise and said: "Why, do you mean to tell me that after all this time and trouble you are not going to sell me one of those good cows?"

"No," he says, "I haven't got them to spare. It's not the cattle that I sell, but the cows that I keep in my pasture working for me that make the money." I said to him:

"Please answer me one question. Tell me how you are going to get your money out of me for the time and trouble you have put in on me if you don't sell me something?" His answer had a wonderful effect on me.

"Lookabaugh, if I have told you the truth you will tell somebody else, and if I have told you a lie I don't deserve anything for it."

I looked at him with a deep feeling of respect. I told him that until then I had doubted the proposition, but now I had confidence in the business and wanted to buy a cow of him. His reply was:

"You need not hesitate to place confidence in any good breeder. You only expect to invest a few thousand, while they have a hundred thousand at stake in their reputation."

This was all new to me, but I began to appreciate the situation stronger than ever, and really felt proud that I had made that much of a start in Shorthorns.

He sent me on to Carpenter & Ross, Mansfield, Ohio, where I bought seventeen head, including the calves at foot, for $5,650. These seventeen head, which consisted of some of the best animals they had on their farm, gave me a start. I was inclined to feel, as many a young breeder feels, that it would be impossible for me to sell their offspring at the price I was paying for the foundation. But to my surprise, before six months had rolled around, I was receiving letters from a number of breeders asking me to price the calves out of some of these cows. They had received the information about my purchase through the columns of the papers, a thing I knew very little about at that time.

When I reached Watonga with this bunch of cattle they sure enough called me crazy. My best friends began to get scared and said I had made a mistake. Even my banker, who had been my heartiest support, took it upon himself to call me into the bank and tell me that he was still with me and to inquire if I didn't think I was going pretty strong. He ended up by saying:

"You know money is getting a little scarce."

I saw the handwriting on the wall. I knew to my own satisfaction that I had figured the proposition out from a systematic standpoint. I realized that in order to accomplish my work I would have to demonstrate to the people of Oklahoma and the Southwest that we could grow good cattle down there, and in order to prove it to them it was necessary for me to take my cattle to the northern shows where the stronger herds were exhibited. Under those conditions I must win the laurels to convince my own friends what it is possible to do in Oklahoma. This is why I am showing cattle in St. Joe.

TO THE UNBELIEVER

THE man who feels that the country will soon be overstocked with improved blood needs only to compare his ideas with the opinion harbored by many a few years ago when it was said that the automobile would ruin the country and would soon be laid aside, when the facts are the manufacturers are today facing a greater shortage in production in endeavoring to keep in sight of the demand than ever before in the history of their business.

I have heard Frank D. Tomson, Editor of The Shorthorn in America, make the assertion many times that if all the registered bulls in the United States were brought together into the state of Iowa there would not be enough bulls to put one on every farm in the state. Then, what about the other forty-seven states of the Union? Must they go without? Or, what about the man that needs two bulls? He should be allowed to have but one until we have produced enough to go around, should he not?

The tremendous amount of land throughout the United States that is being brought into use through the process of irrigation, the amazing number of acres that are still unstocked, and the vast herds of cattle that are still headed by a scrub bull, all make me feel that we men of middle age are not waking up to our responsibility in making use of the farm products to the best possible advantage and transmit the power to others less informed. Thomas Edison has harnessed electricity and transmitted its power to the use of the world and is not able to tell what it is or where it comes from. Yet, we who have only the common, everyday products that come into play in the high cost of living, of which we hear so much, cannot contrive a plan to cause the rural people everywhere to see that by using the improved way of producing beef, pork, mutton and butter-fats we can more easily supply the demand at less cost to the consumer as well as to the producer.

It affects me deeply to think of how much of our soil products are being used in the old way and we are receiving only half the benefit therefrom, to think of the much needed material that is going to waste throughout the land, and yet we farmers criticise the packers for making a profit on the by-products of the packing business. In my opinion they are to be admired for the ability they have demonstrated in making good use of everything that belongs to the cow and thereby are able to pay us a higher price for our livestock.

Here we sit like Bolsheviki and complain when in fact we have more to do in making proper use of all that nature has given us than we have accomplished thus far. It seems to me that the time has arrived when we should begin to realize that in order to prosper ourselves we have only to help others around us to prosper. It is said that ninety-five per cent of all men who enter business fail. There is a reason. We can all do things for others which we cannot do for ourselves. We need co-operation. We need thought. We need Agricultural Statesmen. We have had statesmen of the mind, statesmen of the pen and statesmen of oratory, but where is there any statesman of Agriculture, the foundation of all our prosperity.

It is not a question of stopping the men who have made America what it is today, but a question of helping the ones that do not know how to help themselves. It is not necessary to give them a thing, but to show them and help them to see a way to make good. When this is done every citizen in our great land will see that it is not competition but co-operation that makes business large and successful. I am just as selfish as anyone, and probably more so, but I am sure I am right in the opinion that the foundation principle to our success is to produce more of a higher quality in the same length of time with no more expense. And it is with this idea in view that I am doing all I can to help in the nationalization of a product that has made me comfortable, yet I hear most every day about how much I have done for my country. It is not so much what any one of us has done, as it is the blood we have employed. If a man wins a case in court it is because he has good evidence presented through a good lawyer. That is all one needs to win on a farm, the right kind of a market for your farm crops and a small amount of brains and good judgment in the management thereof.

What we all really want to see is the renter turned into a home owner, the poor, distressed city home into a pleasant dwelling and the illiterate children to have the advantage of a good education. The Government of the United States represents nothing more than the father of a large family. Would a father of six children with five doing well and one not try to stop the five and help the one? Or, if one was sick would he help the well and pay no attention to the sick child? Or, would they all gather around the bedside of the sick one to help it?

There is no question but what pleasant homes bring happy thoughts, thoughts mould character, better characters make better citizens, and that is all we lack today in Americanism. I am an American and I know you are. Let's put over the thing that means so much to the citizenship of America, to the state in which we live, to the community in which we reside, and to the home where some of us stay a part of the time.

IN RETROSPECTION

IT WAS in the year 1906 that the Pleasant Valley Stock Farm first became the home of Shorthorns. This departure on my part was not undertaken blindly and without a definite purpose and ambition. I was possessed with the conviction that improved livestock was the "tap root" to successful agriculture. I believed that the wider use of a breed of cattle which would produce more pounds of beef, butter fat of higher quality, in less time and at no greater expense than with inferior cattle, would inevitably result in opening up a better market for the products of Oklahoma farms. Furthermore, the bankers, business and professional men, and all interested in higher and progressive farming, would begin to look upon the introduction of such a breed with favor. I viewed it as an avenue by which the Oklahoma farmer could market his crops to better advantage, add to his possessions, come into complete ownership of his land, and thus add materially to the wealth of his community. The banker could then be amply repaid for his assistance and support.

A STUDY of the adaptability of breeds to the conditions in my section of the country resulted in favor of the Shorthorn. This decision has since proven wise and well rendered by the steady advance which the breed has made in Oklahoma, the manner in which it has out-distanced all others, and the position which the state occupies today with reference to other states, relative to the number of registered Shorthorns within its boundaries.

IN THIS way was the herd started, based upon the solid foundation of need and adaptability. To build up a great herd and render consequent good to the breed and the state, was then merely the application of certain well defined principles of breeding and methods of doing business. This logically began with the blood employed. The greatest care was used in selecting that blood which has made a reputation for itself by producing animals of individual superiority, that in turn had the ability, when properly mated, to produce even better specimens of the breed. While the importance of proper selection of matronly females is not to be considered secondary, the experience of all notably successful breeders throws great stress upon the selection of the sire. In proportion to the success I have attained in the selection of great breeding bulls I have enjoyed the privilege of sending their sons to head great herds on two continents.

HERE principles of mating entered deeply into the subject, but however mated and from whatever blood lines my animals might come, the matter of feed and care was of overwhelming importance. This is well illustrated by quite a few men who made an admirable beginning, and yet have failed of the greatest accomplishments because of the lack of sufficient nourishment in the proper form, and the individual attention at the right time. And fortunately, this involves only such feeds as can be produced on the farms where the cattle are owned, and care such as any practical and interested farmer and stockman of average intelligence can render. In my opinion and out of my own experience, particularly in the results of cattle in the hands of my customers, a bulky ration is far preferable to a concentrated grain diet, in that it develops daily a digestive apparatus or machinery of greater capacity to convert the rough by-products of the farm into flesh and butter fats.

HAVING put my herd on a producing basis and prepared my product for the market, the next business of importance was the expansion of the trade. It was necessary that converts be made to the use of pure-bred cattle, and various methods were sought in acquiring them. Once a transaction had been made, I proceeded along that line that a satisfied customer was the best possible advertiser for my herd. All that I could give them in way of encouragement and advice was theirs. This led to the operation for years of a "Beginner's Department," the object of which was to put the first registered Shorthorns into the hands of new breeders. To make this possible on a broad scale, I instituted the plan of selling on time, and of offering to give 50 per cent of the purchase price of the dam for the calf at delivery time. This tended to establish a confidence in the business, not only on the part of the owner himself, but of interested neighbors and friends. And finally the banker began to look upon the business as one which was sound and safe.

I N THE spring of 1915 we went to considerable expense in the preparation of the first moving picture film ever made of a stock farm in America. The purpose of this film was not so much to advertise our farm as to teach the farmers the necessity for more and better livestock. It was shown on the Universal Film Circuit in Oklahoma and neighboring states and at many important agricultural meetings. The result was surprisingly effective. This film was never quite as complete as it is now, since the addition of the pictures taken at our last spring sale, and the elimination of the more personal features. It is now available in revised form, without charge, to those who are interested.

THE County Organization work followed through the efforts of County Agents and the resultant benefits are now widely recognized. In one year alone 56 out of 77 counties in our state organized livestock Associations. We offered substantial premiums for the County Organization that showed the largest membership. This was done not only to furnish, through their annual sales, a market for the beginner's product, but to distribute more widely this good blood in the hands of his fellow farmers.

LATER we organized the Boys and Girls Cow and Calf Club. We encouraged the buying of a cow with a heifer calf at foot and the cow already rebred to a good sire. We took in settlement the child's note maturing in nine months or a year, and extended if necessary. These notes were to be paid out of the child's own earnings, if possible, or perhaps with some assistance from its parents. The child's father was asked to take the money received from the sale of the bull calves in payment for the feed of the cow and her female offspring. The child was required to care for the cow and the female offspring, and at the age of 21 years was supposed to divide equally with the father the female herd.

THE underlying purpose of this procedure was to instill into the minds of the youth the principle of accumulation. The parents realized that by giving their children something of real value and high ideals to interest them, they became more satisfied with their home surroundings. Very often the father and mother have by this principle recognized that in a few short years they could give their children a start in the world, and at the same time make their home more happy and prosperous.

ADVERTISING such as farm weekly publicity was used extensively, for the purpose of helping to establish the breed in the Southwest.

And here I wish to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the Farm Press of the country for the free publicity they gave to my plans for the extension of the business. The average publisher and field representative can hardly realize how important were the many kind words of encouragement they gave me. For although one may be of strong will, untiring energy and unfaltering determination, yet it is the little encouragements the breeder receives from time to time that mark his destiny. An encouraging word has often caused the discouraged man to take the upward turn that lead 'round and 'round up the hill of success. Words of encouragement are to the soul what a helping hand is to the body. All combined, these various agencies for good made possible the operation of a herd of more than average proportions in size, and led up to the sale of last May, which many have been good enough to characterize as a tremendous compliment to the efforts of one breeder.

ALL that has foregone is now retrospective. What now interests us all is what the future holds. I firmly believe that the coming years hold for the man who can really accomplish something worth while in the production of Shorthorns of higher quality, a reward not to be compared with the past. The innumerable new herds throughout the country that have been founded on good blood and splendid individuality call for an incessant stream of herd bull material of merit. And from this time forward, my chief ambition is to be that kind of a breeder who can aid the man in need of blood that will wield a constructive influence in his herd and his community. A visitor to my place once asked me for the secrets of my success. Frankly, my business has been a success because of the absence of secrets. Of what I shall be able to accomplish in the future I feel confident. The following pages of this booklet, which I have chosen to call "My Breeding Herd of Shorthorns," unfold the material which has been assembled as a permanent breeding plant, and I believe those who are conversant with Shorthorn lineage will concede that they spring from the sources upon which the breed has built its best.

THE showing I have made at State Fairs and National Shows, the American

Royal and the International, where is found each year the greatest exhibits of the breed, and the winning there of some of the highest honors, has not been for a selfish purpose. It has been to demonstrate that the breed is not alone applicable to and dependent upon the work done in a few cornbelt states for distinctive accomplishment and real progress, but that the entire United States is open for the nationalization of a production which, in my judgment, forms the "tap root" to the success of our commonwealth. The four principles here enumerated—the blood you employ, the care, the feed, and the advertising—when mingled with the deeper sentiments of integrity, courtesy, cooperation and finance, can bring to the world a new era. Granting that prosperous agriculture is the basis of our national prosperity, the manifold increase in the value of our farm products and by-products, when consumed by animals of improved blood means the handing down of that prosperity through all the channels of trade.

With our conscience as our guide feeling our responsibility to the breed we are steering our ship for deeper water, willing to accept what the future may hold in store for us.

H. C. LOOKABAUGH.

THE FARM SCHOOL

REALIZING the great demand for men competent to successfully direct a farm and breeding herd I am exerting my energies toward a solution of this problem.

The tendency during the past few years among men of affairs has been back to the farm, and we know that the near future will see this movement greatly accelerated, because of their knowledge of the necessity of increased production and their desire to throw their financial strength into this work that means so much to the future of the country, besides satisfying their dream of years in being able to leave something behind them when they are gone that will stand as a living monument to their true American citizenship.

But, they need help, and I feel it is the duty of every successful breeder to lend his support in giving proper training to the more deserving and promising among his farm aids, and thereby not only help to supply this demand, but to be of great assistance to many a farm boy by fitting him for a valuable position of this kind and at the same time pay him a good wage while he is acquiring this knowledge.

The doors of this establishment are now open for this purpose. The proportions of the farm and herd make it feasible for me to keep in training a number of this type of men, who know the value of the principle of integrity, are willing to listen and possess a touch that the cow likes. Toward this end a school is being opened, a text book is being prepared, and lectures will be given over which I will preside. I feel that there is no better way in which I can be of greater service to my customers and to the business as a whole.

Applications will be gladly received both from men who aspire to this line of work and from those in need of this kind of service.

MY BREEDING EXPERIENCE

Time Can Be Extended But Not Expanded

MY TIME being so entirely utilized that it is impossible for me to explain in person the many details of this work, I am yielding to numerous requests that this data be prepared in book form. Therefore, I am now preparing a volume which will be known as "My Breeding Experience," written out of my association with the Shorthorn, though not intended for the adherents of this breed alone.

The principles underlying whatever disappointments I have suffered or whatever success I have achieved are applicable in a broad sense to all the various species of Improved Livestock. We are all working toward the same goal, the advancement of Agricultural Conditions, and if this particular breed receives periodical mention throughout its pages the offense will be pardonable by way of illustration.

In the end should this treatise have the result of shortening the path to success of a few deserving and conscientious men that alone will be gratification enough.

The following subjects will be treated:

- I Why I am a breeder.
- II With the beginners.
- III The blood you employ.
- IV The care you administer.
- V The feed you provide.
- VI The value of publicity.
- VII The value of a sire.
- VIII Keeping your records.
- IX Financing your herd.
- X The banker's part.
- XI You are your own salesman.
- XII The everyday market.
- XIII Co-operation.
- XIV The farm in its fullness.
- XV The world's work.

MY BLAINE COUNTY FRIENDS

*The farther one gets away from home
the closer home comes to him*

WHATEVER differences might have arisen between us these all sink into oblivion in the thought that after all we as individuals are only very minute members of one large community family.

More than the recognition of men who have traveled from afar and bought my cattle do I value your co-operation. This is a principle which I believe means far more to individual communities than many are willing to grant. We should all realize that it is possible for any of us to do things for our friends that we cannot do for ourselves. I gladly acknowledge great stimulus and support from your co-operation.

One by one we were allied together in adopting the use of improved blood, a movement which finally chrystallized in the forming of The Blaine County Improved Livestock Association.

More than ordinary significance can be attached to the fact that for three years in succession Blaine County, Oklahoma, under the direction of J. M. Rapp, County Agent, has won first position in the Display of Agricultural Products at our State Fair.

First Prize Calf Herd at the International Livestock Exposition, Chicago, 1917. It is the ambition of every breeder to demonstrate the worth of his herd bull by winning this prize.

Ten daughters of the late Fair Acres Sultan that probably sold for more money than ten daughters of any other sire of his time. A sire that will produce females of an average high quality, as well as outstanding bulls, is in much demand.

The Winning Young Herd of 1918, that in my opinion possessed more quality, a thicker fleshed covering and greater uniformity than any exhibit I ever offered for public inspection.

FAIR ACRES SULTAN JR.

Group of Maxwalton cows in the aged class at the International, showing Maxwalton Roan Lady (on the left) at the head of the class, with Roan Lord, now an important sire in the herd, at foot.

First Prize Get of Sire, American Royal, Kansas City, 1918. A true index to the breeding worth of a sire.

PLEASANT ACRES BELLE

PLEASANT PRINCESS

THE THREE CUP WINNING BULLS

Winners of the silver trophy, offered by Caledonio Pereda of Argentina at the International Livestock Exposition, 1918, for the three best bulls bred and owned by exhibitor and the get of one sire. These bulls, Pleasant Fair Sultan, Fair Acres Sultan Jr. and Max Acres Sultan, were all sired by Fair Acres Sultan, bred and exhibited by H. C. Lookabaugh, and sold at auction for an aggregate of $38,050.

PLEASANT VIOLET BUD, SOLD FOR $4,400

FIRST PRIZE GET OF SIRE, KANSAS NATIONAL LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION, WICHITA, 1920.
Sired by SNOWBIRD'S SULTAN.

A PARTIAL SHOW YARD RECORD

An analysis of this record of winnings discloses a fact to which there is only one exception among all the exhibition cattle sent out from this herd—that every animal shown on the following circuits was either a product of the herd or by sires eventually added to the herd, such as Snowbirds Sultan and Maxwalton Commander.

OTHER REASONS FOR PUBLISHING THIS BOOKLET

A PERMANENT breeding herd permits of a permanent catalog. This book has been constructed with a view to extending over a period of years and thus apply to the business the principle of economy. The information which will be furnished holders of the original from time to time, relative to calves dropped, produce sold, prices received, etc., will furnish the man who is sufficiently interested to keep the pages up to date an opportunity to convince himself of the advantages and the profits in the ownership of a Shorthorn cow.

It will furnish a man who is interested in the selection of a sire, or some foundation stock, the information from which he can choose intelligently the particular ones in which he may be interested, as he will have before him the entire breeding herd and such other information as would be impossible to obtain through correspondence.

Although an effort has been made to render this book unusually complete in the light of my extended experience, I find many items of interest have gone unmentioned, yet it is hoped that it will give the man who will study it under the rays of his own reading lamp some conception of the great principles upon which this herd has been founded.

If it will furnish even a few men an incentive to allow the Shorthorn cow to do for them what she has done for me I will feel I have been amply repaid.

This is a business which appeals to me because it adds to without taking from, it constructs and does not destroy, it builds up without tearing down. The man who spends his life in this vocation leaves to his posterity an enduring monument to his endeavors. Many channels of business afford the opportunity of accumulating wealth, but the breeding of Shorthorns differs from many others in that it enables one to make money without injury to his fellow man.

The fundamental principle upon which rests the success of any breeder lies in the selection of a sire.

Whatever position this herd occupies in the breeding world today is due to the selection of sires of great breeding strength.

The following pages present the record of these sires, both past and present, which have been the corner stones in the upbuilding of the herd.

FAIR ACRES SULTAN.

The value of their breeding worth rests in the extreme uniformity of their progeny and their ability to sire calves in both sexes of equal promise made their success the more pronounced.

So strong was their breeding strength and so indelible their impress upon the breed that they established a tribe of cattle bearing their name—a name that will endure throughout future generations.

SNOWBIRD'S SULTAN.

More About the Whitehall Sultan Twins

Aside from their showyard accomplishments, which are now matters of history and given in part on a preceding page, the get of Fair Acres Sultan first came into prominence when a daughter topped the J. A. Kilgour sale in the spring of 1916 at $2,375. Each succeeding year has marked an advanced step which has evoked national comment. Rosewood Reserve topped the Bellows' sale in 1917 at $8,100. The Ogden sale the following spring set a new top on females when Fair Beauty brought $7,500. This same year Fair Sultan was purchased at private treaty at $17,500 and is now one of the chief herd bulls in use by Bellows Brothers, and Max Acres Sultan sold as a calf at auction at $13,200. That fall Pleasant Averne topped our female offering at $4,125 and Lookatonga Sultan headed the bulls at $6,000. In the spring of 1919 Fair Acres Sultan Jr. brought $17,250 in our sale that as a whole was a record event for Scotch Shorthorns in America, and Pleasant Fair Sultan, a senior bull calf, sold in the same sale at $7,600. The following day 2d Fair Acres Sultan topped the Salter sale at $10,000, and when Standard Supreme, a grandson out of Fair Beauty, entered the Bellows sale later in the year he sold for the top of $15,600.

Following this remarkable record came the progeny of Snowbird's Sultan, without the advantage of having been shown, and commanded such figures as $2,000 for Miss Snowbird Sultan, $2,625 for Whitebird Sultan, $4,000 for Pleasant Gloster and $7,500 for Lookie's Double Sultan. It is conceded by good judges that the coming year will record even higher appreciation of his get. In some particulars they are superior to the get of his illustrious brother.

The Acid Test of My Breeding Experience

Having used two such sires the next and most important problem I have yet faced came in the selection of a successor. To progress and not retrograde was the situation that confronted me.

The solution was

HIS SHOW RECORD

Maxwalton Commander, Grand Champion at the National Western Live Stock Show, Denver; the Kansas National Live Stock Show, Wichita; the Southwest American Live Stock Show, Oklahoma City; the National Feeders and Breeders Show, Ft. Worth; the Mid-Continent Live Stock Exposition, Tulsa, and the International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, in 1917.

At the 1916 International, Maxwalton Commander and his full sister, Maxwalton Roan Lady, were first prize Produce of Cow. They were part of the group that was first prize Get of Sire, and Maxwalton Commander headed the first prize Aged Herd at both the 1916 and 1917 International.

The one demand I had to make of MAXWALTON COMMANDER was: "Will you transmit your thick-fleshing quality and your easy-feeding ability to your offspring?"

* * * In my hands the results have been highly satisfactory, for among all the calves we have ever had on the Pleasant Valley Stock Farm his are the most noticeable in their response to feed and care.

Announcing My Production Sale Friday, May 14, 1920

An offering of more and better cattle for foundation uses than have gone through any previous sale on this farm, not even excepting the great lot of cattle sold last May, and made up of some fifty head, the progeny of the cows that furnished the cattle for the last May event, sired by Fair Acres Sultan, Snowbird's Sultan, 2d Fair Acres Sultan, Fair Acres Sultan Jr. and Pleasant Dale 4th, together with calves from the fifty top cows acquired in the Gillespie purchase, the get of such bulls as Maxwalton Commander, Imp. Caledonia, Roan Lord and Type's Marquis.

Many of these entries are referred to as sale cattle in the produce record of their dams in this book, and the pedigrees of a few older ones will be found on the following pages.

A catalog for this sale will be published in due time. Meantime, this book will serve to give very full information.

Sales of the Week in the Southwest.
